They were those of Giuseppe Pascale Romusido, forty-six years old, and Maria Di Nicolo, twenty-three years old.

The former died at 8 A. M. yesterday and the latter at 10.40.

The captain and the ship's surgeon held a consultation as to whether or edly in conversation with the ship's not it would be advisable to bury the bodies at sea, and it was decided that in view of the extreme hot weather, they declared to Dr. Jenkins, to let the bodies go overboard.

They feared the bodies might endanger the health of the other passengers on board the ship, as it might be several days after reaching port before they could give the bodies a shore burial.

Dr. Jenkins's suspicions are evidently thoroughly aroused, and he has determined to detain the Karamania at Quarantine and to transport all the passengers to Hoffman Island this afternoon. When the ship is cleared of passen gers she will be thoroughly disinfected and fumigated, according to the same methods employed on the cholera-in-past, and the health authorities are fully prepared to receive the 468 passengers of the Karamania, to wash them and disnfect their clothing, and to put them through the entire formula prescribed by Health Officer Jenkins for the treatment of suspected cases with the greatest ex-

ficer Jenkins notified President Allen, of the Quarantine Board, that he had decided to transfer the passengers from the Karamania to one of the quarantine islands. Just which one it will be Dr. Jenkins had not yet made up his mind.

President Allen labored with him to select Swinburne Island as a place of detention for the cholera suspects, as he feared that the seventy-five mechanics employed on Hoffman Island on the new pavilion would decamp in a body if the suspected people were sent there.

President Allen told an "Evening World" reporter that in a conversation he had with Dr. Jenkins this morn ing, the latter, while he would not say positively that the deaths resulted from cholera, did say that they were very suspicious, especially as the vessel come from an infected port.

President Allen said he expected that there would be some difficulty in securing a steamer to transfer the passengers from the Karamania to the Quarantine islands, as owners of vessels did not want to take the risk of their boats being held in quarantine for an indefinite period, as was the case last .

There is no fumigating apparatus on Swinburne Island, and President Allen said the baggage of the passengers would have to be sent to Hoffman Island. Mr. Allen said that, while the case wree suspicious, he did not think there was any cause for alarm. His departany cholera suspects that may be deliv

President Harrison, recognizing the fearful odds against which the local authorities were working, the quarantine force being so small, and obliged to work against a large opposition, political and otherwise, and more especially from the panicstricken and unthinking, demonstrated his entire agreement with the local authorities by issuing his order that all ships from infected ports be detained twenty days, if deemed necessary.

In the early Summer, when the first premonitory warnings were coming from the Meditteranean ports of Europe, President Wilson quietly gathered the members of the City's Board of Health about him in secret conclave, and preparations were made to meet the scourge and strangle it.

The public was not let into this secret, the Board deeming it inexpedient, but on Aug. 9, when there were symptoms of alarm among the people, it was given out that every precaution possible had been taken for the protection of the city.

From that time on Health Officer Jenkins was most vigilant in the scrutiny of all passengers arriving from those European ports where cholera had appeared or might be expected to appear. Jenkins worked in perfect accord latter the Health Department, and the latter a careful house to house inspection for the Sanitary Board.
